

Honor is fading, but it is not lost. Sports like lacrosse are a rarity, since most sports usually do not teach the level of honor and respect which lacrosse does. These traits which honor embodies are necessities that all should try to attain and uphold. By honoring the game I have not only improved myself both physically and mentally, but I have also managed to help improve our community by helping the youth learn to honor the game